Innisfil Beach Park washrooms on hold

by Michelle Minnoch
The new north-east washroom/change-room for Innisfil Beach Park will be re-budgeted in 2008 and council and staff will be considering a new design for the facility.

In 2006, $297,000 in funding was set aside for the construction of a washroom at the north-east area of Innisfil Beach Park.

After testing the area, it was found there was an extensive layer of peat-like material 20-30 feet down in the proposed location.

According to Staff Report CS-28-07, "preliminary cost estimates to construct a foundation for a washroom structure including piles of special foundation anchors would be in the area of $200,000, pushing the total cost of the project to approximately $500,000."

The other two washrooms currently at the park were refurbished last year.

The four options, a prefabricated facility, a brick a mortar facility west of the beach, a brick a mortar facility at the beach, and traditional port-a-potties, range between $2000 and $500,000.
